Meanwhile, here's all you want to know about the Hindi dubbed version of Allu Arjun's Ala Vaikunthapurramuloo:

When and where to watch: Allu Arjun's Ala Vaikunthapurramuloo Hindi Dubbed, will be out on YouTube on Thursday, February 2.

The Hindi dubbed version will be available free of charge on the Goldmines Telefilms YouTube channel.

The full movie will also be available for the watchers on the Facebook page Goldmines.

Manish Shah of Goldmines planned to release the Hindi dubbed version of AVPL in January 2022 however canceled it after Allu Arjun, the maker of Ala Vaikunthapurramuloo convinced and stopped him from releasing the dubbed version.

Last year, speaking solely, Manish Shah of Goldmines Films, informed that they have yet to think twice about any aspect of the Hindi version.

"You won't find any regional references in the Hindi dubbed version. There is a board room grouping in the original where Allu Arjun is singing tunes from South films, we have got everything changed to Hindi melodies," he said.

The highly awaited film, Shehzada, is all set to be released in cinemas on February 10, 2023.

It stars Kartik Aaryan, who had a great 2022 thanks to the blockbuster progress of Bhool Bhulaiyaa 2.

Because of his presence as the lead actor and the entertaining trailer, there's a ton of buzz for the film.

Moreover, it's an official remake of the 2020 Telugu blockbuster Ala Vaikunthapurramuloo, starring Allu Arjun.

The original film was highly loved and acclaimed and this has further enhanced the expectations for Shehzada.

It has now become known that the Ala Vaikunthapurramuloo Hindi Dubbed will be out on YouTube on Thursday, February 2.

The full film will be available on the Goldmines channel. This means that 8 before the release of Shehzada, the Hindi dubbed version will be available for netizens, that too, free of charge of cost.

This move has raised eyebrows, especially because of what transpired between Manish Shah of Goldmines and the makers of Shehzada last year.

In January 2022, taking advantage of no releases because of the Omicron scare and government limitations, Manish Shah announced that he'll release the Hindi version of Allu Arjun-starrer Ala Vaikunthapurramuloo in theaters on Republic Day.

In 72 hours, the release plan was canceled after Allu Aravind, the maker of Ala Vaikunthapurramuloo, flew down from Hyderabad to meet Manish Shah and convinced him to change his mind.

This was done as the fear was that the remake's film industry possibilities would be hampered for sure if the original version, which also starred Pooja Hegde, is made available in Hindi on a large scale.

Meanwhile, in an interview, Manish Shah grabbed headlines when he claimed that Kartik Aaryan had threatened to walk out of Shehzada if Ala Vaikunthapurramuloo Hindi Dubbed hit cinemas.

Later, Manish Shah was allowed to air the film on the Goldmines Television slot.

When contacted, Manish Shah was unfazed and matter-of-factly said, "I own the digital freedoms of Ala Vaikunthapurramuloo, starring Allu Arjun, in Hindi, along with the satellite privileges. It's our prerogative when to (put it out)."

He also revealed that the full movie will also be available on the Facebook page Goldmines.

Other than Kartik Aaryan, Shehzada also stars Kriti Sanon, Paresh Rawal, Ronit Roy, and Sachin Khedekar. Rohit Dhawan coordinates it.
